KILLED HERSELF ON SUNDAY.

Mrs. Eva Ladd Commits Suicide Near Cerulean Springs.

CAUSED BY ILL HEALTH.

Other Members of Family Were at Church When Notified.

Mrs. Mary Ladd, wife of Mr. Eva Ladd, a prominent farmer who resides one mile east of Cerulean, committed suicide Sunday about noon. While the other members of the family were attending church Mrs. Ladd secured a rope from a swing in the yard and going to a barn near by, tied one end of the cord to a tier-pole and the other about her neck and jumped off. Her little nephew, son of Mr. George Ladd, soon missed his aunt from the house and immediately instituted a search. When she was found life was extinct. The youth went at once to the church at the Springs and notified the family of what had happened. Services were at once closed and many of the congregation went to the Ladd residence.

Mrs. Ladd was about 35 years old. She had been in very bad health for some time and the act of self-destruction is attributed to this cause. Deceased was formerly Miss Mary Shoulders. She was a member of the Baptist church and is survived by her husband and two children.

When her husband and children started to church she called the children to her and kissed them goodbye. Her husband and brother, David Shoulders, took her body down and tenderly carried it to the house. Her pastor, Rev. R. W. Morehead, preached her funeral yesterday and the interment took place in the family burying ground.

What to Feed For Eggs.

FEEDING for eggs can be largely governed through a proper knowledge of the food supply. Where fattening foods are given, foods that are full of starch and of heat, they do not contain a sufficient supply of protein. Where all corn is fed, there is plenty of food for the yolk, but scarcely anything for the albumen or white of the egg. When fed freely all foods rich in protein, there is assurance of a full supply of protein for the albumen or white of the egg. We do not think that there is any kind of grain which does not furnish a sufficient amount of the fatty supply. Remember when selecting the winter food supply for the laying hens to furnish them plenty of protein, and plenty of the product which creates the albumen or the white of the egg, for in all these there will be plenty of the fat and the water. The one great necessity of the food supply for winter is to have the greatest amount of protein combined with what is called a roughness or coarseness in the food, so as to not have the ration so constructed as to be unbalanced. A writer from Tennessee gives his experience in feeding cotton-seed meal to chickens. Twenty-four Barred Plymouth Rocks that were laying but three or four eggs per day to the lot while feeding on corn gave much better results when the feed was changed to corn chow, bran and cotton-seed meal, and is now getting daily eighteen to twenty eggs per day from the flock of birds. The feed consists of one quart each of the chow, bran and a gill of cotton-seed meal twice daily, with the poultry on an open range. The writer remarks that a change is noticed within twenty-four hours when changing from the corn diet to the ration above described. There seems to be considerable experimenting with cotton-seed meal with poultry in the South. Many have wondered whether it would make as good food ration as linseed meal. The difference in the ration is as follows: Cotton-seed meal shows thirty-seven per cent protein, wheat bran twelve, while corn but seven. The difference in food value between these is very apparent, yet some contend that cotton-seed meal is a dangerous food for poultry. Feather.

The Rhode Island Reds

An Enthusiastic Breeder Enumerates Their Good Points.

We are frequently asked why we have discarded all other breeds for the Rhode Island Reds. The answer involves several points of preference, but is one we are always pleased to give, as I believe all others would be equally delighted with them if they were given a fair trial. They deserve all the popularity they are at present enjoying. They combine all the essentials for either the farmer, the fancier or the city poultry keeper, namely, beauty, hardiness, early maturity, unsurpassed table and market qualities and unexcelled egg production. The better they are known the better they are liked. Admirers of the breed go so far as to claim that, no matter what special purpose fowl is selected, no matter whether the specialty is eggs, table meat, broilers or winter laying, each particular quality can be duplicated in this one breed. The more I know of them the more I am inclined to believe that this extravagant tribute is merited.

A flock of them is certainly handsome. Ours are a beautiful brilliant red, not buff or chocolate. Since we have adopted this breed we have no trouble with chicken diseases. They are wonderfully rugged, independent little fellows and grow very fast. The pullets begin laying as early as we ever had Leghorns do, and do not seem to mind the extreme cold of winter. When we come to turn off our surplus cockers, we see a great difference from the receipts for Leghorn cockers. The Red cockers, when well grown, will weigh from six to nine pounds, and their plump, yellow legged carcasses are so well liked that we find our local butchers so anxious to get them that they will give a few cents above the market prices. The hens will weigh about six and a half pounds, and also are very profitable when turned off as too old for laying.

As to the number of eggs laid by them, we find it by actual record to equal or exceed those laid by Leghorns, and we have kept two good pure bred strains of the latter, the South Carolina White and the Buff. In favor also of the Reds, I will say a hen. They are large enough to cover a good nest full of eggs, even in cold weather, but not so heavy and clumsy as to smash a good percentage of the eggs or new hatched chicks.

Besides the practical side of the work with this breed, we have found it every interesting and also very lucrative, work developing them along the fancy line. It is interesting to study the best methods of mating these fowls and to see the marked improvements from year to year, owing to our method. They did at first run very uneven in color, owing to the newness of the breed, and the tendency to revert to remote ancestral blood. But they are getting now where they have been properly bred, to come very even and satisfactory. It gives one a pleasant sense of achievement to be able to produce a bird that is better than what we get a proportionately greater number of winter eggs from them when prices are high. As an example of their early maturing and winter laying qualities, I wish to state that a neighbor's boy had three fine June hatched South Carolina Red pullets that during the month of December laid 71 eggs. He had this little flock by themselves, and knew just what they did. And, by the way, isn't that a good way to enlist the interest and co-operation of the boys and girls growing up on our farms? This boy is developing a very profitable strain of fowls all by himself, and is not only earning a nice sum in this way, but is getting a good deal of practical knowledge and experience, as well as the enjoyment.

The Reds are very industrious foragers, getting out in the fields very freely. Still, owing to their quiet disposition and heavy build, they are easily confined, never scaling a fence and the Leghorns. They are very tame and docile to work around, making very intimate pets. I also find this a good trait when setting the hens, as I can move one about, and set her on or take her off the eggs at will, without the conflict that usually attends the setting of either parent, by selecting on one side a bird that is especially strong in points in which the other lacks, and vice versa. And when the public sees the beauty of your flock and knows the practical value of it, believe me, the knowledge that they are correct on the fancy side will not detract from their value, and ready purchasers will be plenty. This applies, of course, to all breeds. All that we have done with this breed any one can do and find it very profitable, as the demand for them is growing all the time, and will, I believe, continue to do so, as the breed is of such extraordinary merit.—Mrs. E. G. Feint in New York Tribune Farmer.

Give Them Air.

When chicks are shut up tight and hot at night no wonder their constitutions are weak, that they succumb to roup and limberneck, cholera and indigestion.

Did you ever see a man who was robust if he did not have plenty of pure fresh air to breathe? Yet some people shut their hens up at night in a little bit of a tight coop, and then wonder why the chicks grow smaller rather than larger. Put fine mesh wire over the front of the coop to keep out the rats and snakes, and then leave them open to the air. Put an extension over the front so as to keep out the rain, and your chicks will grow up hardy.—Poultry Life.

ONLY ONE.

The Record in Hopkinsville Is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Hopkinsville citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

J. W. Pritchett, 752 E. Seventh Street, Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "Four years ago Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at L. A. Johnson & Co's. drug store brought me such great relief that I was glad to tell the people of Hopkinsville my experience with the remedy. Before using them, pains existed through my kidneys and in the back, which caused me a great deal of annoyance. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised so highly that I concluded to try them. They proved to be an excellent remedy, relieving me of the aching in my back and helping me in other ways. I have great faith in Doan's Kidney Pills, and I am sure if people who have kidney trouble will use them according to directions they will be satisfied with the results obtained."

Cause of Soft Shell Eggs.

Hens that acquire the habit of laying soft-shell eggs should be watched very carefully in order to break them of it. There are two causes for soft eggs. One is feeding too much stimulating food; the other not enough shell-forming material being furnished. Too much spiced food and meat is generally found to be the chief cause, and if that is cut out the evil can generally be overcome. If the hens have been overfed, they will show it by the lack of eagerness with which they eat new food. After you are satisfied that they have been fed too much, reduce the supply and add a little Epsom salts to their drinking water for about four days. Grit or crushed oyster shells should be fed if new food of time is the trouble.—Farm Progress.

The Columbian Wyandotte

Written for Fancy Poultry by T. Ried Parrish, Nashville, Tenn.

THE bird with the beautiful black neck and tail of the lordly Light Brahmas, the ever admired Wyandotte shape, the wonderful winter egg production of the Light Brahma, coupled with the great egg producing qualities of the White Wyandotte. A bird beautiful to the eye, a veritable egg machine, a winter producer, a full breast and plump carcass, a beauty and a hustler. What more could man ask?

This the very latest breed admitted to the Standard of Perfection and generally conceded by breeders to be the equal of any old breed we have, possessing many good points lacking in other breeds. There being already a demand for it that justified the belief that it will have the greatest run ever experienced in the history of the fancy. The public are generally on the lookout for something new, especially is this true in the chicken world, and in offering the Columbian Wyandotte we have not only given the new thing but something that has behind it the blood of the oldest and best breed on earth, which has been the direct means of this production which is much superior to any offered the chicken world for years. The Columbian Wyandotte is here to stay. The markings of the Light Brahma, the plump carcass and early maturity of the Wyandotte, you have what is sure to win.

In offering a production like this to the public there should be a clear and clear statement, as to the crosses used in its make, and not an effort to confuse. In offering to the fanciers this article I do not intend that some of the old breeders who claim to have produced the Columbian Wyandotte by crossing on the Barred Plymouth Rocks and Silver-Laced Wyandottes have not done so. I believe that some of the breeders, according to their statements, and the opinion they have of their ability, could by crossing Indian Runner Ducks on Bronze Turkeys produce a mock-birding.

I will take up the crosses as followed by me in the production of the Columbian Wyandotte. While I do not claim to be the first to produce this breed, I had started my work long before I had ever seen a Columbian Wyandotte and believe that I have the best color lines yet established. After selecting from my own yards six two-year-old Light Brahma hens that were in shape and color what I wanted, I procured from a friend in this city a White Wyandotte cock, he being what I wanted in shape. You will see from this that this strain was started here in the city of Nashville, Tenn., and I challenge any Columbian breeder in the country to show that he has furnished one drop of blood in the production of this strain. It is truly a Southern strain, a Tennessee strain, a Nashville strain, whether it is as good as the best, the show rooms of the next eighteen months will tell.

After months of study I decided that a Light Brahma hen with solid black flights, a hackle intensely black, with broad white edging, a very broad and short tail, with the narrowest possible edging to covert, and a clean back was what I wanted for this cross, and selected six from my flock of Light Brahmas as near to this ideal as possible. Now why this broad lacing in hackle while in tail coverts narrow as possible? Because years of experience in breeding Light Brahmas has shown me a very dark hackle has a tendency to black running into the white lacing of the hackle, often reaching to the edge of the feathers, while in the tail feathers the hardest problem is to keep the white lacing from running too far into the black. You will see that in the selection of the females I have considered color above everything, taking into consideration the tail, which I wanted well spread, a broad back naturally going with a well spread tail.

The White Wyandotte cock I wanted with a good small comb, well developed wattles and the shortest bird I could possibly find, with a low, well spread tail, and found one to fill the bill exactly.

What did I get from this cross? Silver-Laced Wyandottes, Barred Plymouth Rocks and Light Brahmas—all feather-legged. The Silver Wyandottes were not birds that a breeder of Silvers would care to breed from. There were some of them with nearly white breasts, solid black wingbooms and showing lacing throughout the plumage, with a hackle that any Silver-laced breeder would be proud of, and a chicken I never would have believed would come from White Wyandotte and Light Brahma cross, but anyone seeing them and not knowing the origin would declare them a cross of Light Brahma and Silver Wyandotte. You can see how easy it would be for a breeder, accidentally crossing one of these specimens and securing back on a White Wyandotte which would naturally produce Light Brahma markings to a certain degree, bring himself to believe that he had started with Silver Laced Wyandotte as original cross. Here is where you get your Silver-Laced Wyandotte cross that has made the Columbian Wyandotte in some yard—a chance cross of White Wyandotte and Light Brahma—the rest supposition. The Barred Plymouth Rocks showed more of the Brahma than the Silvers but there were unmistakable barring throughout the plumage, being especially noticeable in the tail and wings, some specimens showing barring in every section. A cross on this might make something that looked like a Columbian Wyandotte but I doubt it. Yet some breeders are claiming that this, the Barred Plymouth Rock, is their original cross. I do not believe that any breeder has made a Barred Plymouth Rock and White Wyandotte cross for the purpose of producing a Columbian or Silver-Laced Wyandotte for that purpose. Now I had some chicks from this first cross that were fairly good, rose comb Light Brahma or feather-legged Columbian Wyandottes. You would not for an instant suppose that I would eat birds showing good Brahma markings and save the birds showing unmistakable barring or enough black to make them look like Silver Wyandottes—not much. You would not have done such a trick yourself. Scientists may figure that these birds were the ones to use but I am not a scientist and the birds showed good Brahma markings looked to me like what I wanted.

Now we are up to the second cross. The chicks were showing really darker than the Brahma hens from which they were hatched. Why this I am not prepared to say, but I had chicks with almost black hackle with hardly a trace of white edging, tail with blackest of feathers and solid black flights. I made my selections from these, selecting those with only rose comb and least foot feathering, which seemed to be prevalent. Now why not more White Wyandotte blood? I wanted two crosses and selected from the lot to cross on, four White Wyandotte hens, the darkest male bird I had and eight of the best females for another White Wyandotte Cock, paying especial attention to White Wyandotte shape. What does this produce? The White Wyandotte cross, more Silver Wyandottes, more Barred Plymouth Rocks and some fairly good Columbian specimens showing much black in the back, the black in the Silvers being less pronounced, but yet enough to lead one to believe that was a Silver-Laced Wyandotte cross. Some specimens would lead to the belief that a Barred Rock was somewhere in their make up. The best specimens, or the ones showing the best Brahma markings, were in the majority, which was the reverse in the first cross, but the black was not so good as in the first cross, showing a greater tendency to mottle. The White Wyandotte hen cross produced a lighter lot all the way through, the hackles in the best specimens being entirely too light with wings and tail showing more or less white, but some of them being especially valuable for some of my subsequent matings, from these matings there were also some solid white birds which were useless. This light mating produced a greater per cent with clean legs than did the darker cross. From both crosses there were a good number of birds with rose comb and clean legs. This, with the Light Brahma markings, make a Columbian Wyandotte. You will see from this that the Columbian Wyandotte is really made in two seasons with three crosses—no great skill required, either, to make this and people will think you are a scientific breeder and maybe somebody will publish your picture in a poultry journal. If the third or the White Wyandotte hen cross had been left off it is possible you would not have been bored with this article, for there would have been more crosses producing dark birds, but the light birds produced by this cross was what I needed to tone down the dark that was so pronounced in the other cross, and the making or the perfecting of the breed took several years of matings of different types, using mostly single matings and in-breeding whenever possible, every detail having to be given consideration, shape and egg production being especially considered as shape makes the breed and egg production makes the hen. In my next article I will give a detailed description of the Columbian Wyandotte as they are today, and try to remove some wrong ideas as to the mating of this breed for the best results.

Egg Items From Exchanges

Every poultry keeper wants hens that will lay a goodly number of eggs, and the more they lay the more one wants them to lay. We receive many letters asking us which breed lays best, and similar questions impossible to answer. To develop a laying strain, we must start several years in advance. The work of one year, or even two, will not accomplish our purpose. A system of selection must be employed—the layers of this year may be expected to produce better layers for next year, and so on from year to year we can improve the egg-laying capacity of the flock. No indiscriminate selection or random buying will bring satisfactory results, and no breed can be blamed for our own faults.

A billion two hundred and fifty million dozen eggs were produced in this country last year. This means that the hen, the greatest trust-buster of the age, took fifteen billion whacks at the octopus in 1906. So, when you are eloquent about the splendor and permanency of American institutions, don't forget one the mightiest of them all.

A Gallatin, Tenn., special says: Sumner County is sending her surplus eggs to Cuba. Last month a local produce company shipped four cases of eggs to that island, which means one hundred and forty-four thousand dozen. This is but the beginning of their business with Cuba, as the company mentioned now has a representative at Havana making further arrangements.

The Weather.

FOR KENTUCKY—Local thunderstorms Tuesday. Not much change in temperature.

The situation in France over the Wine Growers' movement has improved considerably and the government is believed to be in complete control.

The closing of the case of the state against the battle against and for the life of William D. Haywood, of Boise, Idaho, in the trial and from now forward the sides will change. The defense assumes the aggressive and the prosecution is on the defensive.

Gov. Beckham will name a mayor of Louisville by Thursday and the new official will be one of three—A. E. Richards, Owen Tyler or W. O. Head. R. W. Bingham is tipped for county judge and Randolph Blain for police judge. The other appointments will be made by the mayor and county judge to be named.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it cannot be cured by medicine, and the hearing is lost. The Catarrh Cure, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Rheumatism

Is one of the constitutional diseases. It manifests itself in local aches and pains—infamed joints and stiff muscles—but it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires constitutional treatment, and the best is a course of the great blood purifying and tonic medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which neutralizes the acidity of the blood and builds up the whole system.

In usual liquid form or in chocolate tablets known as Sarsapilla, 100 doses $1.

The convention of the Western Federation of Miners at Denver practically agreed upon a constitutional amendment providing for a referendum vote by any local union before a strike is called, and requiring a two-thirds vote in the affirmative to authorize a strike.

"Bahai" is the name of a new sect in Chicago, who embrace and kiss on meeting each other. It is estimated there are several hundred Bahais in this vicinity who until this item reached them were wholly unconscious of their adherence to the new religion. —Leitchfield Gazette.

No more vitally interesting article has appeared in a long time than "Brain and Body," in the July Everybody's. The author, Dr. William Hanna Thomson, a recognized authority, presents what to most of us will be an entirely new conception of the brain, facts of the greatest practical importance in mental training, and he puts it in a simple, easily comprehended form, unusual in a scientific writer. It is a notable contribution.

In the July issue of McCURE'S MAGAZINE almost important article is "The Confession and Autobiography of Harry Orchard," the confessed murderer of eighteen men including ex-Governor Steiensenberg of Colorado.

George Kibbe Turner contributing "Impertinent Notes," briefly states the history of the situation and gives us his impression of Orchard whom he has seen daily for weeks.

ESQ. NABB'S CARD.

The Cadiz Record refers to the official report of Fire Marshal Mott Ayres accusing Esq. N. E. Nabb, of Wallonia, as a "pernicious report." It will be recalled that Marshal Ayres charged Esq. Nabb with writing a threatening letter to Bob Wallis a short while before the burning of the barn of H. C. Wallis, & Son, Bob Wallis being the son of H. C. Wallis, of Rinaldo, Lyon county, Ky. The Record publishes a lengthy card from Esq. Nabb denying that he ever wrote a letter to H. C. Wallis in his life. He further says: "I feel that I am the victim of a well laid plan. Personally I care nothing for the suspicious resting on me. I shall at all times be ready to face any charge against me." The threatening letter identified by experts as the handwriting of Esq. Nabb was not written to H. C. Wallis, but to his son, Bob Wallis.

The Home Telephone Company have the poles up on the line between this city and Elkton to Cashville and will connect the line near Elkton some time next week if they have as much good luck as they do bad. It will be one of the best constructed lines in this end of the State and many people are just waiting for its completion so they can have 'phones put in their homes. It has been and is the policy of the Home Telephone Company to make friends of its patrons and treat them with every courtesy consistent with good business.—Fairview Review.

Pendleton Law Valid.

Nashville, Tenn., June 21.—In a test case at Bristol, Tenn., Chancellor Haynes declared the Pendleton whiskey law, which gives municipalities the right to abolish saloons, to be constitutional, notwithstanding the omission of the word "state" from the acting clause of the bill. This means that Knoxville, Bristol, and Jackson will join the column of dry cities.

SEVERAL ORDINANCES

Passed and Other Business Disposed of By Council.

The Council met Friday night and had a busy session until eleven o'clock.

Pavements were ordered down on East 12th street, east of Walnut, and on West 19th street, north side, from Main to C. H. Hill's. The property owners are to be given the option of putting down brick or concrete.

Ordinance No. 60, relative to obstructions in the street, was re-passed, owing to a defect in the first one.

An ordinance was also passed requiring all applications for moving houses to come before the Council, which alone can issue permits.

The City Attorney was instructed to look into a new dog law and draft an ordinance taxing dogs if it can be done. The old dog law was repealed last winter.

Councilmen Jackson, Galbreath and Davis were appointed a committee to receive Collector H. C. Moore's annual settlement before July 1 and transfer to him the 1907 books on July 1.

The committee to inquire into the electric lights made a partial report and was granted further time. Mr. L. M. Shepherd, of the City Light Co., addressed the council and invited a thorough inspection. Councilman Galbreath was added to the special committee composed of Councilmen Davis and Teyman.

On the recommendation of the Mayor, the Street Engineer was directed to make a survey of proposed extensions of 13th and 15th streets westward and report to the Street Committee by the next meeting.

After a conference between the Western railroad presidents at Chicago it was freely predicted that in sixty days there would be a 2-cent rate in force throughout the United States or all interstate passenger business. The presidents met to discuss the Missouri situation and the lawyers met to discuss the Illinois situation. The latter practically decided that there would be no effort to stop the enforcement of the 2-cent rate in that State at this time. It was also the opinion that there would be no difficulty ultimately in defeating the 2-cent legislation everywhere.

Twenty-five prisoners in the Jefferson county jail have petitioned Gov. Beckham to have them confined in the penitentiary at once, so that their sentences may begin at once. Among the number are several life-termers. They are detained by a smallpox quarantine.
